

Lisa Thomson Ross
Psychology

2006 Distinguished Teacher-Scholar Award

Lisa Ross received her Ph.D. from Wayne State University in 1993. She has taught classes in Social Psychology, Introduction to Psychological Science, Psychology of personality, Introduction to Women's Studies, and several special topics courses. Her research interests include: Applying psychology to mental health issues, the etiology and prevention of alcohol misuse, the etiology of body image and eating disorders, and she has also conducted research on sexual assault and social support.